Shipping and trade has always been at the heart of the Suez Canal. The maritime community has dedicated its efforts in moving freight through the Canal, the largest inland waterway in the world. Playing the role of a new owner of a vessel traversing the Suez Canal, you will have to operate it as the flagship of the company. Will you be able to beat the competition and be the one with the most cargo when it comes to clearing the Suez Canal? Of course, the last thing you want is to have to play out that terrible scene from the movie Away from Home when the ship runs aground and you have to put everything on the line to pay off the damages.

Now you are on the spot to make your decision and risk everything. Key features: [NEW] 19 new voyages for Suez Canal Simulator, each with its own on going story, embarking from the Suez Canal in Rotterdam [NEW] One new scenario, Suez-Bagdad, a combined journey between the Suez Canal and the Persian Gulf and new gameplay elements such as a master status board on the hull [NEW] 57 new livery for commercial vessels [NEW] Many new upgrades, new options and free actions to manage the ship [NEW] The upcoming Suez Canal DLC is now available on Steam! [NEW] Suez Canal Simulator is FREE for a limited time, giving you an extra reason to catch up on the latest updates and new discoveries Rescue a shipwreck by removing sand and gravel from the Suez Canal. Gather as much cargo as possible to set the record and win the game!

The Suez Canal is the world's busiest commercial waterway, carrying over 60% of all international commercial goods. One single journey through the Suez can cost up to 40 billion dollars. With only 12 kilometers of waterways through a desert full of sand dunes, this 4-mile-long underground sea is a true challenge for players. With nearly five million tons of cargo pass through the Suez Canal each day, it has to be the most complex waterway in the world. Control this fragile and shifting environment and manage the flow of cargo. And make sure you can keep your record intact, so you can be that one to write a tale to tell!

FEATURES - Balance: Steer with the mouse – or the keyboard – the Suez Canal simulator comes with many possibilities to play! - Multitouch:

for more information. This invention is in the field of optics. More specifically, it is directed to the designing of optical elements, including lenses and prisms, using computer-aided design (CAD) techniques. The human eye can see a specific color because the wavelengths that are recognized by the eye have been filtered through the lens of the eye and the retina of the eye. The color of the iris and the color of the retina are determined by the wavelength of the light that is reflected by the iris and the color of the reflected light that is detected by the retina of the eye. In addition, the lenses of the eye have a significant influence on the color of the image that is formed on the retina. It is a difficult task to construct an optical element, including a lens or a prism, that has a desired color filter. The spectra of the light that is emitted by lasers, fluorescent lamps and sunlight differ from the spectra of the light that is reflected by most objects. As a result, an optical element designed to pass light of a particular wavelength range might not pass the same amount of light of a different wavelength range, and conversely. In addition, many materials have a color that is different from the color of the incident light that is absorbed in the material. The visible light that is emitted by light sources can be classified into four wavelength ranges: (1) blue light that has a wavelength of about 390-450 nm; (2) green light that has a wavelength of about 535-570 nm; (3) red light that has a wavelength of about 630-720 nm; and (4) infrared light that has a wavelength of about 780-880 nm. The present invention is directed to producing lenses and prisms that have the desired color filters, and more specifically, it is directed to designing a lens or a prism that transmits light of a given wavelength range and blocks the rest of the light. The present invention also provides a method to quickly and accurately create an optical element, such as a lens, that has the desired characteristics. The present invention provides such a method for designing optical elements using CAD techniques. The features and advantages of the present invention are described in greater detail in the following detailed description of
